

INVITATION TO REGISTER!

Higher Education as Collaboration: Partnering for Work, Leadership, and Life

An Employer-Educator Forum

May 20, 2014
Seattle, WA

Co-sponsors:

The Association of American Colleges & Universities (AAC&U) and the Washington Consortium for the Liberal Arts (WaCLA)

With: Humanities Washington, Koru, Washington Campus Compact, Washington State Board for Community and Technical Colleges, Washington STEM, and the Washington Student Achievement Council

Participants—from across Washington:

From large and small businesses, civic organizations, and non-profits: CEOs, vice presidents, managers, human resources directors and recruiters, and those responsible for university/community relations and corporate partnerships;

From two-and four-year colleges and universities and other higher education organizations and consortia: presidents, chief academic officers, administrators, student affairs personnel and faculty members

Purpose:

To connect employers and educators in conversation about:

- The changing nature of the global workplace and what college graduates will need to be prepared for the world of work;
- How to ensure that all college students—whatever their chosen field of study or ambitions—have access to educational experiences that lead to achievement of the broad learning and intellectual skills they need for success;
- Expanding and supporting new designs for hands-on learning, including such things as senior projects, undergraduate research, and internships;
- Advancing the dual mission for American higher education to prepare students both for successful careers and for civic responsibility
