

End-of-Program Review 2008-09

Addressing Oppression, Privilege and Difference - Environmental Studies Programs

	Extensively	Moderately	A little	Not at All	Percentage of Programs addressed issues	Programs addressed issues (N)	Programs responded (N)
Environmental Studies	0.0%	41.7%	16.7%	41.7%	58.4%	7	12
All Programs	31.4%	26.3%	23.7%	18.6%	81.4%	96	118

ES Programs that addressed issues of oppression, privilege and difference

	Extent	Strategies
Animal Behavior and Zoology	Moderately	Readings, films, class discussions, and study abroad which allowed us to regularly interact with people who live very different lives from us
Environmental Health: Science, Policy and Social Justice	Moderately	Examples of environmental justice cases
Natural History Expedition Leadership	Moderately	First week seminared book, Privilege, Power, and Difference, by Johnson to set our intentions as a learning community
Practice of Sustainable Agriculture	Moderately	Most addressing economics and privilege and race through seminars and group discussions.
SOS: Community Development	Moderately	Readings, seminars and writing assignments
Community Planning: The Future of the Organic Farm	A Little	Discussions about access to food; costs of organic food.
Microbial Ecology	A Little	Examine who has access to technology, health care, water and water sanitation