

End-of-Program Review 2010-11

Addressing Oppression, Privilege and Difference - Environmental Studies Programs

	Extensively	Moderately	A little	Not at All	Percentage of Programs addressed issues	Programs addressed issues (N)	Programs responded (N)
Environmental Studies	30.0%	10.0%	30.0%	30.0%	70.0%	7	10
All Programs	32.3%	26.3%	19.2%	22.2%	77.8%	77	99

ES Programs that addressed issues of oppression, privilege and difference	Extent	Strategies
The Legislature and the Public	Extensively	Discussions, reading critiques, Q&A with guest speakers, workshops, a feature of the writing.
SOS: Community Development	Extensively	Sponsored Maureen Taylor campus and community visit for MLK week Essays on privilege & working across significant differences. Use of theory and practice from southern continent scholars and activists (Paulo Freire, Anis Rahman...)
Creating Sustainable Businesses in the 21st Century	Extensively	Analysis of current business practices; self-reflection writing; strategizing actions to correct business practices.
Botany: Plants and People	Moderately	Focus on women's studies through readings, writing assignments and participation in multiple events on campus for the centennial celebration of women's right to vote in Washington.
The Practice of Sustainable Agriculture	A Little	Considered perspectives from literature and local food bank issues, texts of food justice, global urban agriculture, access to food, water based on privilege.
SOS: Local Agriculture	A Little	Agricultural Labor Laws and Issues
Biodiversity Studies in Argentina	A Little	[Faculty did not elaborate.]